Dear Rahul,

With reference to the attached mail communication and the discrepancies observed in the previously submitted bills, the Client has clearly instructed that all executed quantities shall be physically verified at site against the approved MIRs and measurement records prior to bill validation.

Despite our earlier intimation, the required verification is still pending from your end.

Please note that percentage-based bill certification will not be considered.

Certification shall be based solely on the actual quantities physically verified at site and supported by the approved MIRs and measurement Sheets.

Thanks & Regards,

Yuvaraj. A

Dear Yuvaraj Sir,

As discussed, the bill has been prepared based on 80% of the actual executed quantity, after adjusting the cumulative certified amount already released through previous RA Bills. The approval of this bill is currently awaited from your end.

We would also like to respectfully submit that the billing process and the certification of executed work are separate commercial activities. Any site-level observations, pending issues, or execution-related matters may certainly be addressed and resolved independently; however, the review and validation of the submitted bill may kindly be processed based on the work already executed and available for certification.

We request you to kindly prioritize the review and validation of the submitted bill, as the approval is required for raising the Tax Invoice and completing the billing cycle. The continued delay is affecting our invoice processing and working capital planning.

If there are any specific observations, discrepancies, supporting documents, or revisions required from our end, kindly let us know. We shall address the same on priority.

Your support and cooperation in expediting this matter will be highly appreciated.

Looking forward to your response.

Thanks & Regards

Rahul | Billing Engineer
